

GEBERIT AQUACLEAN CARE CASE STUDY: ROBERT MOORE

Suffering from an irritable bowel, Robert Moore, from Rainham in Kent, was already familiar with the benefits of wash dry toilets after using one for more than seven years. However, his personal hygiene has been given a further boost with the installation of a new Geberit wash dry shower toilet, offering enhanced comfort levels and a better clean.

ROBERT'S STORY

Due to irritable bowel syndrome, keeping clean with traditional toilet paper is difficult for Robert Moore. Over a decade ago, he was introduced to the concept of wash dry toilets by his Occupational Therapist when a Geberit AquaClean 8000 Plus Care shower toilet was installed as part of a level access shower adaptation.

However, after years of use the toilet came to its end of life and was in need of replacement. Thanks to a Disabled Facilities Grant and with the support of an Occupational Therapist from Medway Council, Robert was able to purchase a brand new Geberit AquaClean Mera Care Toilet, helping him to enhance his comfort levels and lessen any concerns that he wasn't adequately clean.

THE SOLUTION

Geberit's AquaClean Mera Care shower toilet is the ideal solution for those suffering from irritable bowel syndrome who may find cleaning themselves with toilet paper uncomfortable. The toilet's oscillating warm water spray arm ensures a thorough and effortless clean, which is then enhanced with a warm air dryer, offering a hygienic and comfortable alternative to toilet paper.

Robert said: "It's much more comfortable than the previous model. It's easier to use too - that might sound strange but the washing and drying is excellent. The standard has increased enormously in recent years."

THE FUTURE

Robert is thrilled with the Geberit Mera Care toilet, which offers a better clean and additional comfort levels than his previous shower toilet.

Robert adds: "I find the longer, gentler wash on the Geberit Mera Care more comfortable, gentler and effective. After using the AquaClean Mera Care for just a week, I no longer felt the need to check as I know I'm spotlessly clean every time."
